Every year increases the popularity of this valuable Hair Preparation, which is due to merit alone. We can assure our old patrons that it is kept fully up to its high standard; and it is the only reliable and perfected preparation for restoring Gray on Faded Har to its youthful color, making it soft, lustrous, and silken. The scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean. It removes all eruptions and dandruff, and, by its tonic properties, prevents the hair from falling out, as it stimu-lates and nourishes the hair-glands. By its use, the hair grows thicker and stronger. In baldness, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, and will create a new growth, except in extreme old age. It is the most economical HAIR DRESSING ever used, as it requires fewer applications, and gives the hair a splendid, glossy appearance. A. A. Hayes, M.D., State Assayer of Massachusetts, says, "The constituents are pure, and carefully selected for excellent quality; and I consider it the BEST PREPARATION for its intended purposes." 26. 1 by all Druggists, and Dealers in Me nging clear to the gate of heaven.

The poet Goethe tells a sad and beauiful story-and it is the more sad and beautiful because it is true—of a young girl, Johanna Sebus, who, in the year 1809, when the sea broke down the hearted girl.

When the waters rose around the houses, and the waves washed up to the very doorsteps, Johanna knew that there was no longer safety, excepting on the high grounds near the village. But how were they to reach those high grounds? The water was nearly knee-deep and rising every moment. The roaring and surging of the waves and the wind was heard in every direction, and the dyke was giving away, piece by piece, before the rushing flood. Every moment the danger increased. There was no time to hesitate.

Johanna's mother, an aged woman, could not force her way through those raging waves. But Johanna was tall and strong. She took her old mother in her arms and stepped boldly into the water. The waves dashed against her, but she pressed on. Her neighbors, a mother and three children, seeing her leave them, were seized with a sudden terror. Not until this moment did they know how much they depended on the they could look for counsel or help in this hour of peril.

-so terribly near to her, Johanna turned to her neighbors and called to them to fly to the hill close by, which was yet dry, and would afford them safety for a time, and assured them that she would return to them as soon as she had placed her mother on the high ground. "And my poor goat," she cried, as she heard her favorite bleating after her; "take

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of VINEGAR BIT-TERS?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient re-covers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of VINEGAR BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonio, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs in Bilious Diseases

The properties of Dr. Walker's Vinegar Bitters are Aperient, Diaphoretic, Carminative, Nutritious, Laxative, Diuretic, Sedative, Counter-Irritant Sudorific, Alterative, and Anti-Bilious.

Articulation Continued.

We have looked over our editorial of Sept. 10th, to discern the unlucky slip of the pen that has let loose on us such an avalanche from the quill of Howard an education, and the power of advertis-Glyndon. But we fail to find it. We had had our attention called to the signal success in learning to speak of an old to the level run of humanity, who pick friend, through Mr. Whipple's method, and while giving publicity to the fact, we made a few wild remarks upon articand then let him go? Is it to close the ulation in general, for which we are summarily told that we are blind as well as deaf. A ridiculous simile is also thrust down our throat labelled with a pious text from scripture. We are not quite the old fogy our fair correspondent takes us to be. We are one of the present generation, and since the world moves we move with it.

lieve that a good many of the semi-mute receive instruction in articulation. Had We quote: we a semi-mute child, we should instantly pack him off to one of the articulation schools, firm in the belief that his improvement would be assured. But if it was not, we should devoutly thank heaven that there was yet an infallible sign system to fall back upon. We have little to say of those who still persist in pleading the uselessness of articulation for all cases, ditto of those who insist that it is the system for all cases; this subject has had the bottom pretty thoroughly knocked out of it, and we would advise them to keep hammering away at the old iron-it will hurt nobody but themselves.

We are not aware that we have assumed articulation to have long been "a standard method of instruction in this country." But we gave a reason why it does not happen to be-it has been tried and been found wanting. However, for the cases of the semi-mute and semi-deaf and some few congenitals, it is acknowledged as an auxiliary of no mean value.

We have before us an article furnished the Commissioner of education by President Gallaudet, of Washington, and as there is much in it that relates to our low us for a brief space. President Gallaudet made careful examination of the results attained at Northampton, seeking light on the following questions: deaf-mutes acquire such a degree of language more rapidly and perfectly than those educated under the system which makes large use of the language of signs and the manual alphabet, discarding articulation?

3. Is it desirable or important to attempt to and read from the lips?

4. Is it practicable or desirable to dispen with the language of signs and the manual alphabet in the instruction of deaf-mutes?

To all but the first of these questions, his researches led him to give a negative answer, and we don't belong to those who standing, under correct instruction in an think President Gallaudet is "so blind ordinary institution. The sign language that he won't see."

In 1867 the distinguished Moritz Hill. following opinions in answer to queries made to him by President Gallaudet:

"Out of one hundred pupils eleven can con-

And President Gallaudet adds:

to converse readily with strangers on ordinary subjects' when they leave school. Allowing that double this number 'learn to do this after quitting school,' by reason of their increased intercourse with strangers, we have remaining 67 per cent., or a full two thirds majority of deaf-mutes of all sorts, who, after all the help that can be given them in schools founded on the articulation basis, can never hope to do more in oral speech than 'converse on commonplace subjects with their teachers, family and intimate friends, and in this number we include 15 per cent, who cannot hope to do even so much as this."

In respect to the sign language and the part it plays in the welfare of the deaf, we would ask our opponents once more to listen to Mr. Hill. He speaks thus of those who pretend that in the "German Method" every species of pantomime language is proscribed:

"Such an idea must be attributed to maley lence or to unpardonable levity. This pretence is contrary to nature and repugnant to the rules of sound educational science. If this system were put into execution, the moral life, the intellectual developement of the deaf and dumb would be inhumanly hampered. It would be acting contrary to nature to forbid the deaf-mute a means of expression employed by even hearing and speaking persons. * * * It is nonsense to dream of depriving him of this means until he is in a position to express him-self orally. * * * Even in teaching itself we sen orany. Even in teaching itself we cannot lay aside the language of gestures, (with the exception of that which consists in artificial signs and in the manual alphabet, two elements proscribed by the German school,) the language which the deaf-mute brings with him to school, and which ought to serve as a basis for his edu-To banish the language of signs from nool-room, and limit ourselves to articulation, is like employing a gold key that does not fit the lock of the door we would open, and re-fusing to use the iron one made for it. * * * At the best, it would be drilling the deaf-mute but not moulding him intellectually or morally. Where is the teacher who can conscientiously declare that he has discharged his duty in postponing moral and religious education until can impart it by means of articulation.

igh the language of pantomime acts, a several respects, in an unfavorable manner on the teaching of articulation, it ought to be remembered that institutions for the deaf and dumb are not created solely to impart this latter kind of instruction; their object is much more extensive, and they have to meet wants which depend on education taken in its entirety."

this statement of Mr. Hill of the true obliged to receive them, keep them on reach of education, and that they were

Forty-six pupils were under instruction in articulation, but most of these were semi-mutes and semi-deaf, and while in some cases gratifying results were obtained, the success was not uniform. The whole number of pupils in the Asylum was 280 and the reader can see what proportion were deemed capable of artiulate instruction.

Howard Glyndon admits that "many of the deaf and dumb cannot profit by the sign system, and we repeat that we articulation," because "they are of weak mind." With merely suggesting that there are other weaknesses which are formidable barriers, we would inquire what would become of these "many" were there no sign system-no sign language? But what earthly reason can she have for the stupendous folly of this remark of hers 1-

"The common sense view of the subject is that a deaf-mute would be better with only half an education, and capacity to hold intercourse with those around him by word of mouth, than he would with the most elaborate one, while he was still deprived of the vernacular of those with whom he associated."

Is it a confession that articulation is only capable of giving a deaf-mute half less gibberish? Is it to raise the mute earnestly solicit a continuance of it. up their idioms as they go-who make no doors of the National Deaf-Mute College and the other avenues of higher education for deaf-mutes? We cannot understand this sort of common sense. What is it? We are are told that articulation is

New and the sign system Old. Granted as far as our country is concerned, but denied as the world goes. Mr. Hill, Lest we should be again misunderstood from whom we have made some pertinwe here record ourselves as thinking a ent quotations, was for half a century great deal of articulation so long as it is engaged in the instruction of deaf mutes confined to its proper scope. But when by articulation, and there were others the pot happens to boil over, we are in who lived and worked before him. Infavor of taking it off the fire. We be- deed we know a writer who fixes the date of the commencement of this sysand semi-deaf, in fact, that a majority of tem at the year 940! Mr. Fay, of them should be placed where they can Ohio has a word to say on this point.

"Considerable has been said of late years about the practicability of teaching mutes by speech, only more patiently and casual students of deaf-mute education have had ready opportunity to believe that a new sun is about to rise in the firmament of deaf-mute instruction. Old asrrmament of dear-mute instruction. Our instruction, which a luminary of the same hame, and its relative importance in the educational system has been long since calculated with tolerable correctness."

We cannot believe with Howard Glyndon that it is a "natural tendency of the deaf to successfully adopt lipreading." Signs is their natural language, their natural tendency. Nor do we believe that there are lots of mute lip-readers not regularly instructed, who go about picking up their knowledge at haphazard, unless, indeed, Howard refers to intelligent semi-mutes. Again, semi-mutes always debarred, we deny that in most cases the command of idiomatic English on the part of these lipreaders is infinitely greater, or that other things being equal, there is no comparison at all between them and those "who a professor in the Asylum, as follows: have been so thoroughly educated as the old sign system will permit."

We are here reminded of a good joke on a certain professor who made it his business to preach down signs and land subject, we ask Howard Glyndon to fol-One day a mute gentleman of perhaps thirty-five visited his school-room, and they fell into conversation. From beginning to end the manual alphabet was the means of communication, and the pro-1. May dear-mutes acquire such a degree of fluency and readiness in oral utterance and lip-tending as shall compensate for the time and labor necessarily involved in imparting these powers to such as are entirely without them?

2. Do deaf-mutes, educated in and by articulation, acquire the power of using correct written lation, acquire the power of using correct written lation, acquire acquire such a degree of fluency and readiness in oral utterance and lip-tending the variety and extent of idiomatic English at the command of the gentleman, and so he jumped at the conclusion that he owed nothing to signs. But the facts fessor marked with surprise and delight in the case were that the gentleman was the son of deaf parents, familiar with signs from infancy, a teacher himself and one of the strongest advocates of teach the entire number of deaf-mutes to speak pantomime anywhere to be found.

The more we see of the exercises of ongenital articulation pupils, the more are we convinced that they show more 'deaf-mutisms' than a class of equal has its own idiom, and in many cases this idiom is the same as that of of Weissenfels, Germany, expressed the English so far as the idea goes. Indeed, in a considerable experience in teaching the deaf, we have frequently noted thi "Out of one hundred pupils, eighty-five are fact. And to test it, we have made ourcapable, when leaving school, of conversing on commonplace subjects with their teachers, family and intimate friends. Sixty-two can do so lation till they became familiar with a verse readily with strangers on ordinary subjects. Many others learn to do this after quitting school." reproduced on the slates, the English was faultless and the idiom pure. This "Eleven per cent. only of deaf-mutes of all sorts, including, therefore, the semi-mutes and the semi-deaf, are claimed by one of the greatest of living teachers of articulation as being able to converse readily with strangers are considered."

This stations are the interest and many other things the skillful teacher can do. He can extract from a poison-ous lot of signs an intellectual drink that shall be a universal cure. But, not doubting the inclination, there are not scape goat for every blunder, every fail-It is attacked, thrown hither and thither, picked up, soothed, petted, kicked

For we presume that like every other well-appointed institution, it will have a department of articulation. Some will be bright youths never before under instruction, and an attempt will be made to rouse their vocal powers ; but the success will not be uniform, and > of this fact no one is more cognizant than the articulationists themselves. Some will come well on in years with minds never yet touched by the teacher's wand and hardened by years of inaction and neglect. The Coming Deaf-Mute Festival.

There has been some talk of holding a festival in Shakspeare Hall, Syracuse, under the auspices of the Empire State Association, sometime during the coming winter. The plans are in the rough, but we think the features of the festival will consist of a lecture, supper, dance and innocent games to pass the entire night

But to ascertain whether, most of the friends of the Association prefer the festival to be held about the middle of January or the fore part of February, we should like to hear from them all by postal card as early as possible. No day earlier than the second Wednesday in January will be considered.

UNVEILING OF THE MONUMENT AND DED ICATORY EXERCISES.

After the unveiling of the monument addresses were delivered in the Asylum Hill Congregationalist church, where a large company of mutes, with their friends. and teachers and pupils of the Asylum

Mr. E. C. Stone, Principal of the Asylum, presided. The exercises were opened by prayer in the sign language by the Rev. W. W. Turner, formerly principal of the Asylum.

PRESENTATION ADDRESS.

Mr Thomas Brown, of New Hampshire, President of the Clerc Memorial Union, delivered the presentation address, which was read by Mr. Williams, Hon. Calvin Day, President of the American Asylum— SIR: We have invited you to wit ness the unveiling of a monument to the nemory of the mute philanthropist who left his beautiful country and came with the immortal Gallaudet to aid in establishing the first mute school in America. Gallandet and Clerc labored togethe many years to confer the benefit we are now enjoying. They lived together like brothers, and both died in this city where they started their benevolent en-

We honored the memory of Gallaudet with a monument, and now we offer the same tribute to the memory of Clerc. There is a slight difference of style be tween the two monuments; but we hold ooth names equally in grateful remembrance. Both remain as perpetual beacons to the mute community, like Wash ington and Lafayette.

I had the pleasure of knowing several of the first directors of the American Asylum—sincere and honored friends of the deaf and dumb. Alas! all are now gone except James B. Hosmer, Esq., whom we hope to see here this day.

All the first able teachers who labored with Gallaudet and Clerc are also gone. except Rev. W. W. Turner and Mr. David E. Bartlett, whom many of their former pupils are glad to see here. May they be long spared! The survivors of the earliest pupils of Gallaudet and Clerc are very few. Among them are Mrs. Gallaudet and Mrs. Clerc, who have been blessed to live and see these monuments erected in honor of their husbands.

I keep as a most valued memento the watch which Mr. Clerc used to wear and which Mrs Clerc presented to me. The graduates from the different

MR. DAY'S ADDRESS.

Hon. Calvin Day made the reception address, which was translated into the sign language by Prof. J. C. Bull, of the Asylum. Mr. Day said:

Mr. President and gentlemen of the Clerc Memorial Union: You are assembled to day for the fulillment of a purpose which you have long cherished, and for which you have long labored—the erection and dedication of a suitable and lasting monument to the memory of Laurent Clerc. It is fitting and honorable that you should meet for such a purpose. The name of Clerc is justly dear to every deaf-mute in the broad land.

He was one of the earliest and most retaining those that they can instruct and century, it had been universally conletting the rest depart under a verdict sidered and believed that deaf-mutes as Could anything be more clear than that they are hopelessly dumb. To these two men, far more than to any others, is due the credit of establishing that benevolent, wise and enlightened system of education, which in this country, offers to the deaf-mutes advantages friends. During the past year we have for instruction and improvement, almost received many valuable clippings through if not quite, equal to those enjoyed by any other class of his fellow citizens.

The heart of every deaf-mute in the land should swell with gratitude in dwelling upon the history of these two SHOES men,—and every patriotic American citizen must feel a pride in seeing that his country now occupies a position second to no other, in this noble work of benevolence and progress. But it is not my province to eulogize the dead or to recount their labors. Our chosen orator will dwell upon these themes, and time will fail him sooner than subjects of interest.

It is my pleasing official duty—on behalf of the American Asylum for the Deaf and Dumb to accept, in trust, this beautiful monument—and to promise you that it shall be carefully protected and preserved. Standing as our appropriate companion to the monument of the dear personal friend, and the earnest colaborer of Clerc,—this endearing proof of our gratitude to a benefactor and of our appreciation of his labors in the cause of education, will be an ornament to the grounds of this institution, which is the loved alma mater of so many among you, and will be an interesting object to every visitor, while at the same time, by the constant presentation of a great example, it cannot fail to fulfill the higher purpose of exciting teachers and pupils alike to a zealous and earnest pursuit of their respective aims, and of arousing in the minds of every spectator an admiration for the faithful and generous discharge of duty, and an increased interest in the triumphs of enlightenment and intelligence in the great and noble department of benevolent activity. We heartily congratulate you upon the complete and gratifying success of your un-dertaking, and we are happy to promise our co-operation in guarding and preserving its results. In our next issue will be inserted the eloquent oration delivered by Mr. James Denison, principal of the Columbia Institution for the Deaf and Dumb, Washington, D. C., and other addresses.

A Doaf-Muto's Trial.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM STATE PRISON-QUESTIONABLE ACTION OF A POLICE JUSTICE.

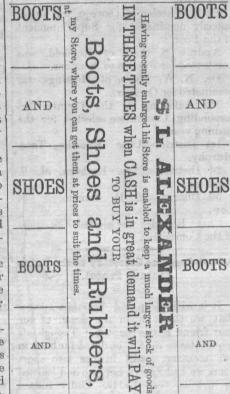

In the Court of General Sessions, yesterday, Thomas Farrell, a deaf-mute, was placed on trial, charged with highway robbery. It appeared from the evidence many who are capable of doing this, and thousand, and I am pleased to say that No. 304 East Eleventh street, that on the morning of the 16th of August last, while walking home in a state of semiintoxication, he was attacked by Farrell, ciates in the present board are as true who struck him on the head and snatchand cuffed again, and thus it remains a friends to the deaf and dumb as were the ed a gold watch from his pocket. O'Reilly grappled with Farrell, who managed to release himself twice, but was finally contributors all over the United States | held by the former until the arrival of Officer Kiernan. In the struggle, O'Reilof this monument to Laurent Clerc, as ly said, he received two stabs in the face, the Gallaudet monument was received and called on a man named Michael Ryan, who, with some others, was standing by, for assistance. Ryan came toward transfer it as a precious charge to your O'Reilly, but, instead of rendering any assistance, placed his knee on the prostrate man's breast, and robbed him of his watch chain. The officer, hearing the cry of help, came to the assistance of O'Reilly, and found him struggling with Farrell, whom he arrested. Meantime the other man had escaped. Ryan was subsequently arrested, on complaint of O'Reilly, who charged him with the larceny of the watch, and was committed. together with Farrell, at Essex Market Police Court. Ryan, however, was subsequently discharged by Justice Kasmise, his release, as alleged, having been effected by Patrick J. Ryan, Deputy Clerk of the Fourth District Civil Court, and an uncle of the accused, while Farrell was incarcerated in the Tombs. In answer to the questions of Mr. Wm. F. Kintzing, counsel for the prisoner, O'Reilly admitted that Ryan's uncle had spoken to him about the charge against his nephew. A rather curious coincidence in connection with the affair is that on the day Ryan was discharged, the missing watch was restored to the complainant. Judge Sutherland, in alluding to the extraordinary action of Justice Kasmire in discharging a prisoner after he had been fully committed, said the police justice had no such power, and expressed a desire to be made acquainted with reasons which justify such a proceeding. Assistant District Attorney Nolan informed the court that he would fully investigate the matter. The prisoner through the Rev.

an amount of intelligence surpassing any of the class of deaf-mutes, and had met Dr. Gallaudet, who interpreted his statement, said he had been drinking on the night in question, and was attacked by O'Reilly, from whom he was struggling to release himself when arrested by the officer. He denied that he committed the robbery or was in any way connected with Ryan or the other men. The jury. without leaving their seats acquitted the prisoner, who had evidently been victinized in order that Ryan might escape -New York Times, Sept. 24.
